The Themis Network was officially launched in 2010, on the occasion of a conference on illegal logging and environmental crimes, by the adoption of a joint declaration and the approval of a multi-annual work programme.

Between 2012 and 2014, the network operated under the project “Promoting regional cooperation in South Eastern Europe via networking within the authorities responsible for the environment and justice sectors”, according to the principle of ownership by the beneficiaries. Its main guiding bodies were its Steering Committee and Secretariat and the donor countries. The Secretariat — hosted by the Regional Environmental Center for Central and Eastern Europe (REC) — was developed in cooperation with partner organisations.

Network activities during this period were organised in three clusters and targeted at policymakers/legislators from ministries of justice and the environment; judges and prosecutors; and environmental inspectors.
The Themis Network is a regional cooperation initiative between the environmental law enforcement units of Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo*, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Montenegro and Serbia, including parts of the judiciary system. The aim is to increase administrative capacities in the relevant national authorities to tackle environmental crime and enhance regional dialogue and cooperation in the context of approximation to European Union environmental legislation.

Cluster 1: Network governance
- The Regional Environmental Center as Secretariat
- Executive Committee
- Network focal points
- Donor (Austrian Development Agency)
- Beneficiaries/target groups

Cluster 2: Natural resources management
- Nature and biodiversity protection
- Forest management and combating illegal logging
- Targeted assistance based on specific requests (on-the-job training, law drafting and review)

Cluster 3: Enforcement of criminal law
- Networking and cooperation with international and regional partners
- Best-practice exchange
- Capacity building towards compliance with the EU Environmental Crimes Directive

Outcomes and Impacts
- Enhanced capacity in the region for nature protection, forest management and combating environmental crime via training activities:
  - 8 regional training events
  - 6 national training events
  - 1 technical assistance workshop
  - Over 200 officials trained
  - Approximately 600 officials indirectly benefiting from the trainings
- New/enhanced links among national stakeholders
- Improved regional understanding and cross-border cooperation
- Strengthened international partnerships
- Exchanges of experience with EU countries (mainly Austria, Croatia and Hungary)
- Three publications

*This designation is without prejudice to positions on status, and is in line with UNSCR 1244 and the ICJ Opinion on the Kosovo declaration of independence.
Cluster 1

Network governance
- The Regional Environmental Center as Secretariat
- Executive Committee
- Network focal points
- Donor (Austrian Development Agency)
- Beneficiaries/target groups

Cluster 2

Natural resources management
- Nature and biodiversity protection
- Forest management and combating illegal logging
- Targeted assistance based on specific requests

Cluster 3

Enforcement of criminal law
- Networking and cooperation with international and regional partners
- Best-practice exchange
- Capacity building towards compliance with the EU Environmental Crimes Directive

The Themis Network is a regional cooperation initiative between the environmental law enforcement units of Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo*, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Montenegro and Serbia, including parts of the judiciary system. The aim is to increase administrative capacities in the relevant national authorities to tackle environmental crime and enhance regional dialogue and cooperation in the context of approximation to European Union environmental legislation.

OUTCOMES AND IMPACTS

Enhanced capacity in the region for nature protection, forest management and combating environmental crime via training activities:
- 8 regional training events
- 6 national training events
- 1 technical assistance workshop
- over 200 officials trained
- approximately 400 officials indirectly benefiting from the trainings

New/novel links among national stakeholders

Improved regional understanding and cross-border cooperation

Strengthened international partnerships

Exchanges of experience with EU countries (mainly Austria, Croatia and Hungary)

Two publications

*This designation is without prejudice to positions on status, and is in line with UNSCR 1244 and the ICJ Opinion on the Kosovo declaration of independence.
The Themis Network is a regional cooperation initiative between the environmental law enforcement units of Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo*, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Montenegro and Serbia, including parts of the judiciary system. The aim is to increase administrative capacities in the relevant national authorities to tackle environmental crime and enhance regional dialogue and cooperation in the context of approximation to European Union environmental legislation.

Network governance
- The Regional Environmental Center as Secretariat
- Executive Committee
- Network focal points
- Donor (Austrian Development Agency)
- Beneficiaries/target groups

Natural resources management
- Nature and biodiversity protection
- Forest management and combating illegal logging
- Targeted assistance based on specific requests (on-the-job training, law drafting and review)

Enforcement of criminal law
- Networking and cooperation with international and regional partners
- Best practice exchange
- Capacity building towards compliance with the EU Environmental Crimes Directive

OUTCOMES AND IMPACTS
- Enhanced capacity in the region for nature protection, forest management and combating environmental crime via training activities:
  - 8 regional training events
  - 6 national training events
  - 1 technical assistance workshop
  - over 200 officials trained
  - approximately 800 officials indirectly benefiting from the trainings
- New/norfused links among national stakeholders
- Improved regional understanding and cross-border cooperation
- Strengthened international partnerships
- Exchanges of experience with EU countries (mainly Austria, Croatia and Hungary)
- Two publications

*This designation is without prejudice to positions on status, and is in line with UNSCR 1244 and the ICJ Opinion on the Kosovo declaration of independence.
The Themis Network is a regional cooperation initiative between the environmental law enforcement units of Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo*, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Montenegro and Serbia, including parts of the judiciary system. The aim is to increase administrative capacities in the relevant national authorities to tackle environmental crime and enhance regional dialogue and cooperation in the context of approximation to European Union environmental legislation.

Cluster 1: THEMIS WORK PLAN 2012–2013
- The Regional Environmental Center as Secretariat
- Executive Committee
- Network focal points
- Donor (Austrian Development Agency)
- Beneficiaries/target groups

Network governance
- The Regional Environmental Center as Secretariat
- Executive Committee
- Network focal points
- Donor (Austrian Development Agency)
- Beneficiaries/target groups

● The Regional Environmental Center as Secretariat
● Executive Committee
● Network focal points
● Donor (Austrian Development Agency)
● Beneficiaries/target groups

Natural resources management
- Nature and biodiversity protection
- Forest management and combating illegal logging
- Targeted assistance based on specific requests (on the job training, law drafting and review)

Enforcement of criminal law
- Networking and cooperation with international and regional partners
- Best practice exchange
- Capacity building towards compliance with the EU Environmental Crimes Directive

OUTCOMES AND IMPACTS
- Enhanced capacity in the region for nature protection, forest management and combating environmental crime via training activities:
  - 8 regional training events
  - 6 national training events
  - 1 technical assistance workshop
  - over 200 officials trained
  - approximately 500 officials indirectly benefiting from the trainings
- New/former links among national stakeholders
- Improved regional understanding and cross-border cooperation
- Strengthened international partnerships
- Exchanges of experience with EU countries (mainly Austria, Croatia and Hungary)
- Two publications

*This designation is without prejudice to positions on status, and is in line with UNSCR 1244 and the ICJ Opinion on the Kosovo declaration of independence.
The Themis Network was officially launched in 2010, on the occasion of a conference on illegal logging and environmental crimes, by the adoption of a joint declaration and the approval of a multi-annual work programme.

Between 2012 and 2014, the network operated under the project “Promoting regional cooperation in South Eastern Europe via networking within the authorities responsible for the environment and justice sectors”, according to the principle of ownership by the beneficiaries. Its main guiding bodies were its Steering Committee and Secretariat and the donor countries. The Secretariat — hosted by the Regional Environmental Center for Central and Eastern Europe (REC) — worked in cooperation with partner organisations.

Network activities during this period were organised in three clusters and targeted at policy makers/legislators from ministries of justice and the environment; judges and prosecutors; and environmental inspectors.
The Themis Network was officially launched in 2010, on the occasion of a conference on illegal logging and environmental crimes, by the adoption of a joint declaration and the approval of a multi-annual work programme.

Between 2012 and 2014, the network operated under the project “Promoting regional cooperation in South Eastern Europe via networking within the authorities responsible for the environment and justice sectors”, according to the principle of ownership by the beneficiaries. Its main guiding bodies were its Steering Committee and Secretariat and the donor countries. The Secretariat — hosted by the Regional Environmental Center for Central and Eastern Europe (REC) — worked in cooperation with partner organisations.

Network activities during this period were organised in three clusters and targeted at policy makers/legislators from ministries of justice and the environment; judges and prosecutors; and environmental inspectors.
The Themis Network was officially launched in 2010, on the occasion of a conference on illegal logging and environmental crimes, by the adoption of a joint declaration and the approval of a multi-annual work programme.

Between 2012 and 2014, the network operated under the project “Promoting regional cooperation in South Eastern Europe via networking within the authorities responsible for the environment and justice sectors”, according to the principle of ownership by the beneficiaries. Its main guiding bodies were its Steering Committee and Secretariat and the donor countries. The Secretariat — hosted by the Regional Environmental Center for Central and Eastern Europe (REC) — worked in cooperation with partner organisations.

Network activities during this period were organised in three clusters and targeted at policy makers/legislators from ministries of justice and the environment; judges and prosecutors; and environmental inspectors.